Why study Spanish in Spain?

Combining daily classes with the experience of living in Spain is a unique opportunity to learn Spanish. As a Spanish learner in one of our schools you will get to know the wide cultural diversity of Spain, its gastronomy and the wide range of leisure activities that the different parts of the Spanish geography can offer you. Spain is a country that is admired and respected throughout the world. Our geographical position and historical development, as well as our defence of human rights and understanding between cultures, have made us a significant player on the international scene.

Spanish, a growing universal language

Spanish is becoming increasingly important in the fields of education, business and finance. With more than 599 million Spanish speakers, Spanish is the second most spoken language in the world.

Spanish is the language of 21 countries, the second language of international communication and the third language of communication on the Internet.

It is also growing: more than 20 million people are learning it and the number of Spanish speakers will grow to 754 million by 2050.

According to the report "Spanish, a living language", by the Instituto Cervantes, the contribution of Spanish-speaking countries as a whole to world GDP is 6.4 % and sharing a language doubles trade between countries.

A country of freedoms and cultural diversity

Spain offers a stable and consolidated democratic political framework, backed by the 1978 Constitution that guarantees fundamental rights and public freedoms. Spanish society is one of the most open in Europe to social change and stands out for its spirit of integration, respect for sexual freedom and coexistence between religions.

As a result of people from different cultures living together for centuries, the Spanish character is open, cheerful, tolerant and respectful. Citizens from other countries feel welcome and 80 % of children of foreigners adapt without problems in Spain, one of the highest integration rates in the world.

Each Spanish region has its own idiosyncrasy and its people are really different. The climate and customs of each region have sculpted a different personality in its inhabitants.

Far from being something that causes disunity, it should be admired as a cultural richness for the student's enjoyment.

Life quality

Spain has the second highest life expectancy in the OCDE.

Its healthcare system is the third most efficient in the world, according to the Bloomberg index (behind only Hong Kong and Singapore). According to the index published by the medical journal The Lancet, Spain has the eighth best healthcare system in the world in terms of quality, the third best in the EU, after Sweden and Finland.

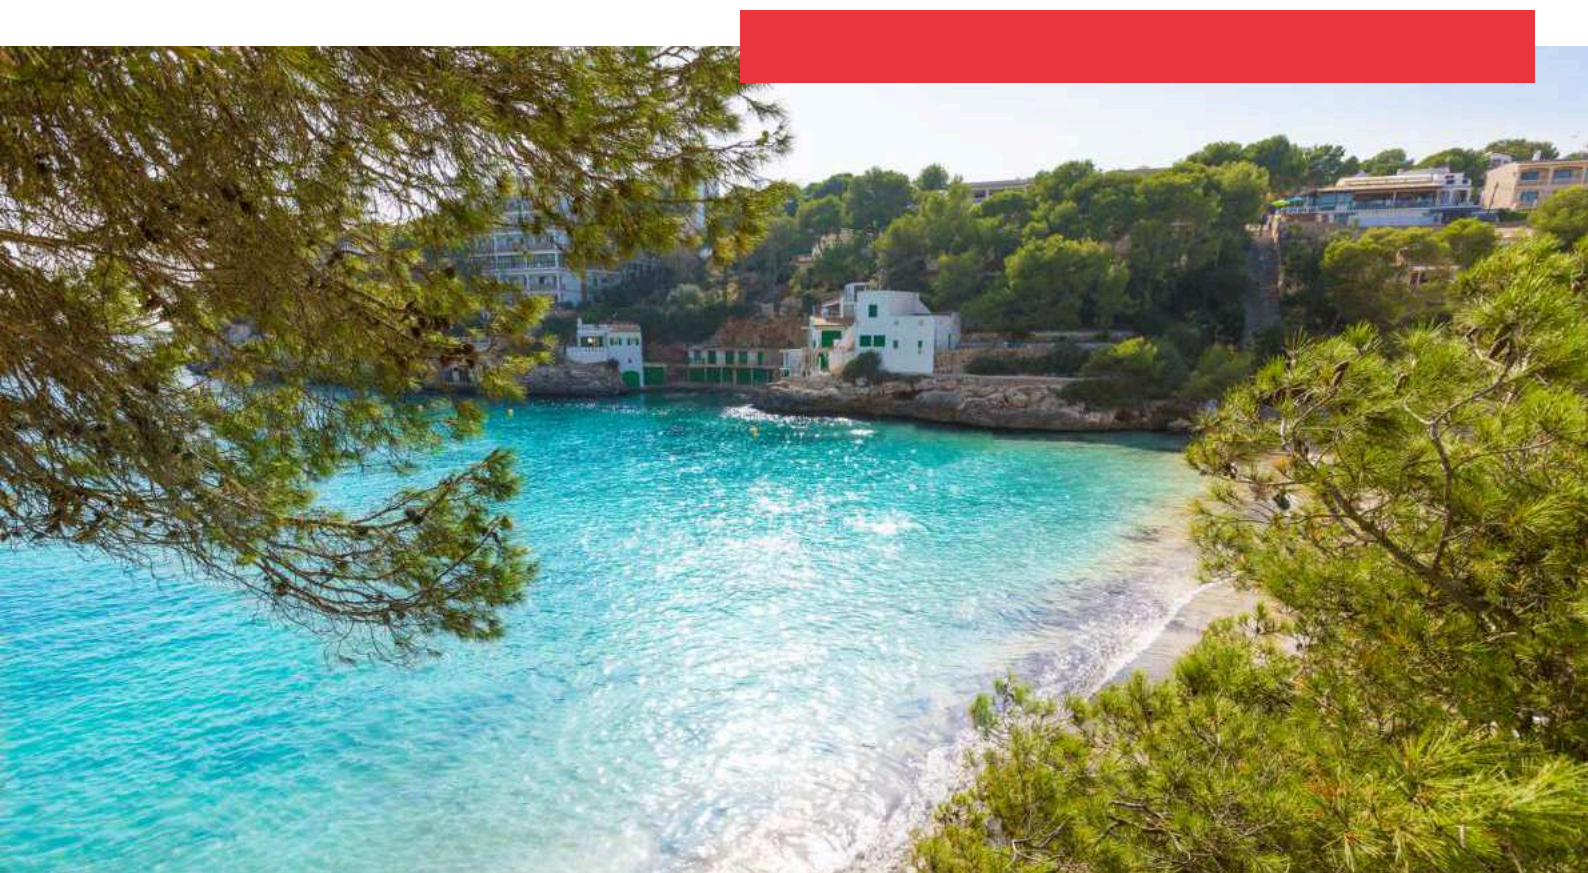

Landscape diversity, an unique climate and the best beaches

The climate is one of Spain's main attractions. With more than three thousand hours of sunshine a year, it is one of the warmest countries in Europe, and a land full of contrasts.

From the lush mountains of the north with wide valleys of green meadows interspersed between mighty mountains where beech forests are lush in contrast to the sparse Mediterranean pine forests that populate the east coast, to the beaches of the south, via the Central Plateau and the Mediterranean coast, Spain's landscapes are as varied as they are striking. The natural environment is one of the great attractions of the country, which leads the world in the number of Biosphere Reserves.

Large and extensive beaches of white or golden sand; small hidden coves; beaches surrounded by forests and greenery; good for diving, for going with children... There are all kinds of beaches for all tastes and from north to south, from the Costa Brava, the Costa Blanca, the beaches of Cabo de Gata, the wild Costa Norte or the Costa del Sol.

Blue flags are flying in the sky all along the Spanish coast.

Unbeatable tourist infrastructures

Spain has lived off tourism for many decades.

The Spanish hotel industry is unrivalled in Europe, and very few in the world.

The same goes for restaurants, diversity and quality of attractions and leisure offers.

Spain's infrastructure network is one of the best in the world. Spain has the world's second highest high-speed rail network and the first in Europe, as well as the most modern and technologically advanced railway network on the continent. It is the ninth country in the world in terms of air connectivity and has the most extensive motorway map in Europe.

Healthy, varied and tasty cuisine

Raw ingredients are fundamental in any good cuisine and Spain has an exceptional larder: fruit, vegetables, meat and fish of the highest quality.

Iberian ham, olive oil, cheese and wine are all part of the Mediterranean Diet, Intangible Heritage of Humanity. From the most traditional recipes: potato omelette, paella, stew, fabada, salmorejo... to the most avant-garde signature cuisine, Spanish gastronomy is synonymous with quality.

And we must not forget its most universal preparation: tapas.

Safety

Spain has one of the lowest crime rates in Europe. It is the third safest country in the EU, behind Luxembourg and Slovenia. According to the "Legatum Prosperity Index", Spain would rank 15th in the world for national security and personal safety.

Historical and monumental legacy

Spain is a melting pot of culture, history and monuments that is hard to find anywhere else in the world.

Palaces such as La Granja de San Ildefonso, in Segovia; cathedrals such as those of Burgos and Santiago de Compostela; medieval castles such as Xàtiva; Roman ruins such as those of Mérida; museums such as the Prado in Madrid or the Guggenheim in Bilbao; and sublime works such as the Alhambra or the city of Toledo. Spain is the country with the third highest number of UNESCO World Heritage declarations. In addition to treasures such as the Alhambra in Granada and the Camino de Santiago, Spain can boast of being the birthplace of universal geniuses such as Cervantes, Goya, Velázquez, Picasso, Dalí and Gaudí.

Sport: A model of success

The coordinated work of the Administration, federations, clubs and private organisations places Spain among the best countries in the world for practising sport and hosting major competitive events. Sport is also a great ambassador for Spain abroad and a vehicle for promoting cooperation, integration and cultural exchange.

Popular traditions

España es uno de los mejores países del mundo para disfrutar de la vida y de sus fiestas locales y nacionales. Durante tu estancia puedes coincidir con algunas de nuestras interesantes y también divertidas fiestas tradicionales: Ferias, Semana Santa, Carnavales... seguro que has oído hablar de alguna.

Cádiz (Andalusía)

The Southern corner

From Cádiz, the sea, its people, its bay, its history and its zest for life. The province of Cadiz is very diverse, with regions worth visiting, from the countryside of Jerez de la Frontera to the villages of the Campo de Gibraltar or a tour of the white villages and a rest somewhere along the coast between Tarifa and Sanlúcar de Barrameda.

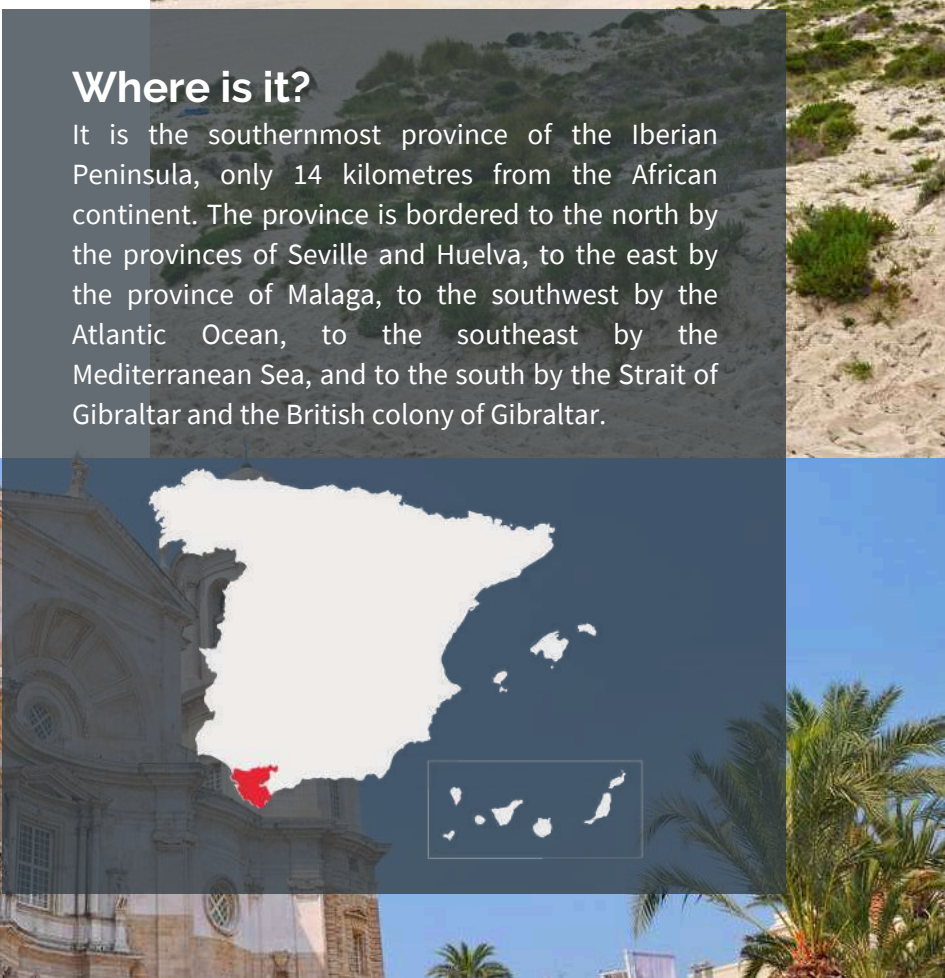

Landscapes

Its 260 kilometres of Atlantic coastline boast long, fine sandy beaches, many of which have not yet been developed and are not yet heavily exploited for tourism. The entire coastline forms part of the Costa de la Luz. We can find excellent quality urban beaches such as those of La Victoria in the city of Cadiz or La Barrosa in Chiclana, as well as unspoilt beaches such as those of Levante in El Puerto; Los Caños de Meca and Zahora in the municipality of Barbate, Bolonia in Tarifa and El Palmar in Vejer. Inland, the wineries of Jerez or the Ruta de los Pueblos Blancos and the Ruta del Toro are worth mentioning.

Where is it?

It is the southernmost province of the Iberian Peninsula, only 14 kilometres from the African continent. The province is bordered to the north by the provinces of Seville and Huelva, to the east by the province of Malaga, to the southwest by the Atlantic Ocean, to the southeast by the Mediterranean Sea, and to the south by the Strait of Gibraltar and the British colony of Gibraltar.

Cordoba (Andalusia)

Four cultures and a lot of life

Cordoba is world famous for its Mosque-Cathedral. It has a monumental historic centre declared World Heritage and full of little streets where you would want to linger, patios full of flowers, pleasant squares and lively taverns where you can enjoy a good flamenco show or taste the typical gastronomy.

Gastronomy

Going out for tapas, tasting the typical dishes of popular gastronomy, discovering equestrian art, enjoying a flamenco show in a tablao or relaxing in an Arab bath are all special experiences in Cordoba. The best-known areas for tapas are the old quarter and the neighbourhoods of San Lorenzo, San Andrés and Santa Marina.

Where is it?

Cordoba is an Andalusian province in southern Spain. The province is bordered to the north by the provinces of Ciudad Real and Badajoz, to the west by the province of Seville, to the east by the province of Jaen and to the south by the provinces of Malaga and Granada.

Granada (Andalusia)

Traditions and culture

Granada is music and poetry, pure monumental art, millenary culture. It is a province that reaches for the sky from the steep peaks of the Sierra Nevada; cities of impressive architecture that are perched on the Altiplano; white villages scattered across valleys and hillsides that end in the cliffs and beaches of the Costa Tropical. The province of Granada, a privileged tourist destination, allows the traveller to go skiing in the Sierra Nevada, venture into the hidden villages of the Alpujarra, explore the last frontier of Al-Andalus in the Poniente Granadino or stay in caves that recall troglodyte life. A land of mild, warm summers and winters conducive to the enjoyment of snow sports.

Landscapes

The province of Granada is characterised by a staircase of high plateaus that descend from the high peaks to the Mediterranean Sea. These high plateaus and the altitude of the land mean that the climate has very cold winters. This has a strong influence on vegetation, agriculture, livestock and hunting.

Where is it?

On the shores of the Mediterranean Sea and in the heart of the Penibetic mountain range. Its capital is the city of Granada.

It borders the provinces of Malaga and Cordoba to the west, Jaen to the north, Almeria to the east and the Mediterranean to the south.

Malaga (Andalusia)

Traditions and culture

Malaga, ancient and cosmopolitan in the past, preserves its historical roots intact. If in ancient times it was witness to the origins of man and Mediterranean culture, today it has become the leading power in the Andalusian tourist industry, keeping alive its tradition of a welcoming and creative land. Malaga has a seafaring coastline where it is never winter; a mountainous vocation, inland, where nature is shown in all its splendour. White villages with beautiful architecture, shrouded in romantic legends, put their point of light in the hidden valleys where life flows placidly.

Landscapes

The Mediterranean Sea directly bathes a total of 14 municipalities in Malaga. It is possible to visit hidden enclaves where the purest nature surrounds the environment, or more touristy and consolidated spaces. We cannot forget the inland landscape, with more than 15 areas protected as reserves, sites or natural monuments.

Where is it?

The province of Malaga is located to the south of the Mediterranean coast, between the provinces of Granada and Cadiz, and bordered to the north by the provinces of Cordoba and Seville.

Its capital city is Malaga.

Seville (Andalusia)

Traditions and culture

Between the foothills of the Sierra Morena to the north and the Sierra Sur, flows the Guadalquivir, the old Betis, irrigating a rich and fertile valley. In its lower course, 70 kilometres from the sea, lies the millenary city of Seville, capital of the Andalusian Autonomous Community and of the largest and most populated province of Andalusia. The riverside towns and cities are a living testimony to its historical and cultural past. Seville is an emblematic city of universal fame, Arab, Jewish and Roman, also in its river, its river port, a privileged destination for trade with the West Indies. Its artistic and folkloric manifestations make it a privileged tourist destination.

Landscapes

The province of Seville is a mosaic of cultures that have their roots in the most remote past. The great river basin of the Guadalquivir, the Sierra Morena and the marshes of the Doñana Nature Reserve offer visitors a landscape map of large wetlands, a refuge for a variety of birdlife, mountain trails with lush Mediterranean vegetation and the chance to see the fighting bull.

Where is it?

It is the capital of Andalusia, as well as the largest province in the autonomous community. It borders the provinces of Malaga and Cadiz to the south, Huelva to the west, Badajoz to the north, and Cordoba to the east.

Culture and costumes

The province of Huelva has a rich cultural heritage that is showcased in its celebrations, such as the well-known Romería del Rocío, which brings together more than a thousand pilgrims every year. Its gastronomy combines the excellence of Jabugo Iberian ham with the fish and seafood from the coast, reflecting the union of the sea and the mountains. Flamenco music, local fairs, and popular celebrations highlight the warm and joyful character of its people

Landscapes

Huelva combines unspoiled beaches with golden sands and natural landscapes of great ecological value, such as the Doñana National Park. Inland, the white villages of the Sierra de Aracena, together with the reddish tones of the historic Riotinto mines, create a unique and diverse landscape.

Where is it ?

The province of Huelva is located in the southwest of Andalusia, bordering Seville to the east, Badajoz to the north, Portugal to the west, and the Atlantic Ocean to the south.

Ávila (Castile-Leon)

Its Walls

The iconic wall of Ávila can be visited with a route of 1 700 metres. Its views of the Cathedral, the Mercado Grande square and the city's surroundings are well worth the climb. This cathedral is considered the first Gothic cathedral in Spain and is attached to the wall because it was also designed as a fortress.

Special Moments

Ávila is a peaceful city that invites you to enjoy the climate. For example, the sunset from the Cuatro Postes viewpoint. If you go there after dark, you'll discover the view of the wall illuminated in the darkness. Lunchtime is also a good time to enjoy Ávila. Its meats are famous, especially the veal cutlet, and the beans from El Barco de Ávila and the yemas de Santa Teresa (egg yolks from Santa Teresa) are very popular. You can try them all with the DegustÁvila menus you'll find in many restaurants in the city centre.

Where is it?

Ávila is a Spanish city and municipality, located in the province of Ávila, in the autonomous community of Castile-Leon. It is located along the course of the Adaja River and is the highest provincial capital in Spain, at 1131 m above sea level, which means that snowfall is relatively frequent in the city centre during the winter.

Salamanca (Castile-Leon)

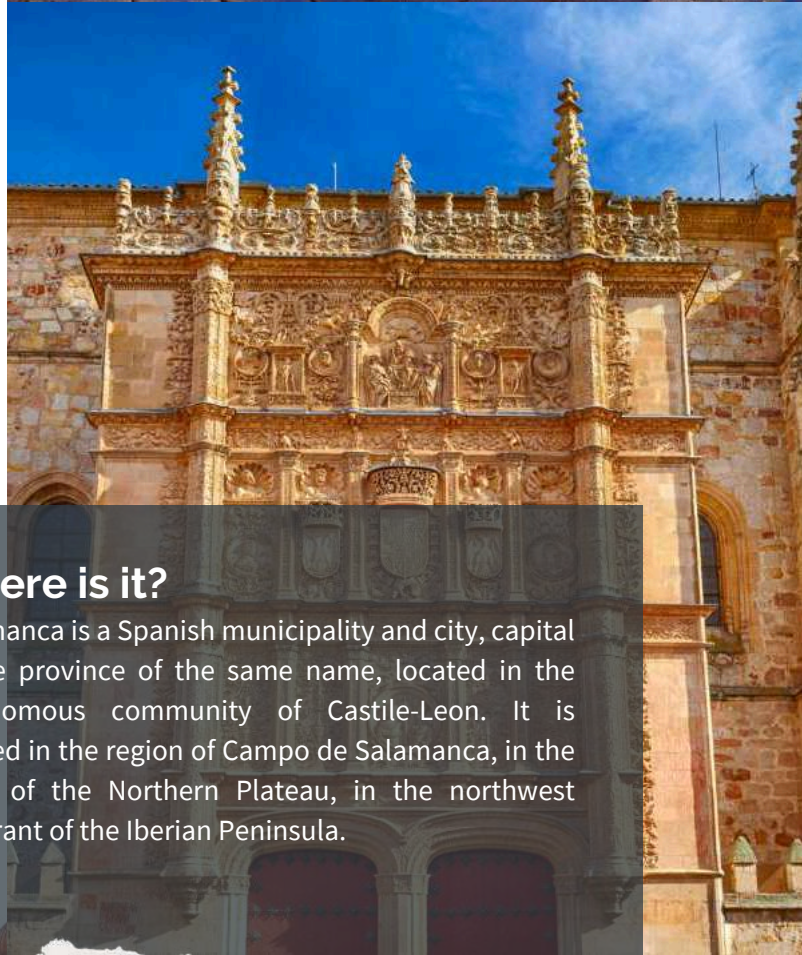

City of Secrets

To enter the monuments of Salamanca is to enter a world of legends and stories to be discovered. A good walk begins in its famous Plaza Mayor, the city's meeting point par excellence. Having a coffee in the mythical Novelty, contemplating its 88 arches or sitting quietly on any of its terraces is really worthwhile.

For your enjoyment

What is surely no secret is how good the food is in this town. Some of its typical products are sausages, Guijuelo ham or the popular hornazo -a pie filled with egg and ingredients such as pork loin, chorizo...-. They can be bought to take away, although eating them here is sure to taste even better.

Speaking of shopping, the pedestrianised streets of Toro and Zamora are full of shops and in the Plaza del Liceo you can even go shopping in the refurbished church of the former convent of San Antonio el Real.

Where is it?

Salamanca is a Spanish municipality and city, capital of the province of the same name, located in the autonomous community of Castile-Leon. It is located in the region of Campo de Salamanca, in the heart of the Northern Plateau, in the northwest quadrant of the Iberian Peninsula.

What is the best way to learn Spanish? A language is learnt more quickly if we can communicate from the beginning and thus, with little effort, improve day by day. With almost 30 years of experience teaching Spanish to thousands of students, we have adapted all our courses to be fully communicative and inductive. In each class your teacher works with you on all the Spanish skills, you will speak from the very first moment and without even realising it, in just a few lessons you will be able to communicate only in Spanish. ;)

At our school we adapt to you and your needs: you can choose both the type of course and its duration. And the best thing is that you can do it from home with a live connection with your teachers and classmates or you can come to live the immersion experience in Salamanca, the city of Spanish, or combine both options. Or combine both options, the choice is yours!

The first time you walk under the stone arches that lead into the don Quijote Salamanca school, you will be filled with a sense of meaning and inspiration that can only come from a space built many years before. The interior of the 16th century building has been completely modernised, but some of the ancient stone walls have been purposely left exposed, to bring students into direct contact with hundreds of years of Spanish history. The classrooms are structured in a circle around the central courtyard, where students can step outside for a breath of fresh air between classes. There is also a cafeteria where you can taste delicious local cuisine while practising your Spanish and socialising with other students.

Alicante (C. Valenciana)

Traditions and Culture

In the province there are up to ten festivals declared to be of International Tourist Interest: in Alicante, the Bonfires of San Juan; in Torrevieja, the International Habaneras and Polyphonic Contest; the Moros y Cristianos festivity in Villajoyosa, Alcoy and Crevillente; Semana Santa in Crevillente and Orihuela; the Fira de Tots Sants in Cocentaina; and the Mystery Play of Elche and the Palm Sunday Procession in the city of Elche.

Beaches and archaeological sites

The province is identified with the Costa Blanca tourist brand. It has a typical Mediterranean landscape in which beaches are interspersed with mountainous terrain. Alicante has an abundance of archaeological sites, many of which belong to the Mediterranean Arc of the Iberian Peninsula, declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO.

Gastronomy

On the coast, fish and seafood dishes are more typical, while in the mountains and inland there are dishes more typical of these areas, with a greater influence of meat and country produce. As Alicante is a crossroads, it shares influences from Valencian, Murcian and even some from La Mancha cuisine.

Where is it?

The province of Alicante is bordered to the west by the Region of Murcia and the province of Albacete, to the north by the province of Valencia, to the south by Murcia and to the east by the Mediterranean Sea.

Castellon (C. Valenciana)

Traditions and Culture

The endless network of museums in the province is a faithful testimony to a cultural wealth where the traditional is mixed with the innovative and the latest trends coexist with the most endearing folklore. Likewise, the counties of Castellón have a valuable musical and literary heritage and an abundant artistic and cultural offer. If there is one thing you must see in Castellón, it is its famous Magdalena festivities.

The Cast and its beaches

The Costa de Castellón arouses an infinite number of sensations in those who visit it; from the pure aroma of the fruit tree to which it owes its name, the orange blossom, to the pleasant freshness of the sea breeze, the soft touch of the endless, warm, fine sandy beaches or the beauty of the wild coves that bathe in the calm waters of the Mediterranean Sea.

Gastronomy

Being a mountainous province bathed by the sea gives Castellón all the ingredients for a very rich and varied gastronomy. Rice dishes, stews, delicious desserts and bakery craftsmanship combined with a fresh and healthy Mediterranean diet.

Where is it?

Situada en el este de la península ibérica, limita con el mar Mediterráneo al este, y con las provincias de Tarragona al noreste, Teruel al oeste y Valencia al sur. Su costa recibe el nombre turístico de Costa del Azahar

Imagine a city lined with 20 km of fine-sand beaches, crossed by an ancient river that today has become the largest urban garden in Spain; a city surrounded by orchards that grow the fruits and vegetables of the Mediterranean diet, and with a natural park where the rice for its most iconic dish—paella—grows.

Pamplona (Navarra)

Roads full of History

Roads create history and foster traditions, and in the Kingdom of Navarre the Way of St. James stands out, which has left an indelible mark on customs and heritage. Other routes with centuries of tradition are the Roman roads and the cattle trails; Navarre also offers a multitude of short and long-distance footpaths.

Land of Diversity

Caress the rugged green silhouette of the Pyrenees and observe how it undulates and loses strength as it approaches the Ribera. Smell the scent of tradition that the Pilgrims' Route to Santiago de Compostela conveys, from the legendary Roncesvalles to the town of Viana. Savour the colours of the fiesta: white and red invade the Sanfermines and the summer celebrations. Don't miss the varied gastronomy of exquisite meats and tasty vegetables from the market gardens of La Ribera, accompanied by the excellent wines of the region.

Where is it?

It is a Spanish municipality and city, capital of the Autonomous Community of Navarre.

San Sebastián (Guipúzcoa)

The City

The urban layout of San Sebastian unfolds overlooking the Bay of La Concha. Monte Igeldo marks the boundary at one end, an unbeatable vantage point from which to enjoy the views over the city. At its feet is Punta Torrepea, where the "Peine del Viento" (Wind Comb), a sculpture by the famous Basque artist Eduardo Chillida, is located.

Gastronomy

One of the best ways to explore its neighbourhoods and get to know its culture is through its gastronomy. Basque cuisine has international prestige thanks to the quality of its raw materials and the skill of its chefs, both traditional and imaginative.

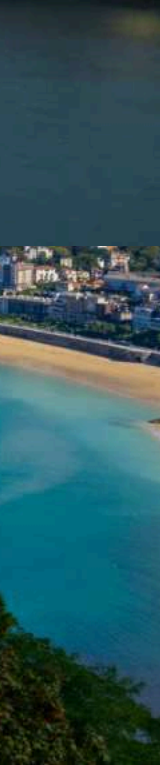

Nature

Rivers and valleys guide us through the interior of the province. Following the course of the Oria, the historic towns of Tolosa, Ordizia and Lazkao preserve important monumental legacies. The Urola valley has the old quarter and spa of Cestona/Zestoa, the medieval layout of Azpeitia and the Sanctuary of San Ignacio de Loyola, a Baroque complex that is the centre of Basque religiosity.

Where is it?

It is a Spanish town and municipality located on the coast of the Bay of Biscay and 20 kilometres from the border with France. The city is the capital of the province of Guipúzcoa.

Santiago de Compostela

(Galicia)

The Route of Santiago

For centuries, thousands of pilgrims have walked the Camino de Santiago every year with a dream to fulfil: to reach the capital of Galicia and enter its now mythical Cathedral. Tradition has it that the remains of the apostle Santiago, discovered in the 9th century, are buried in this monument.

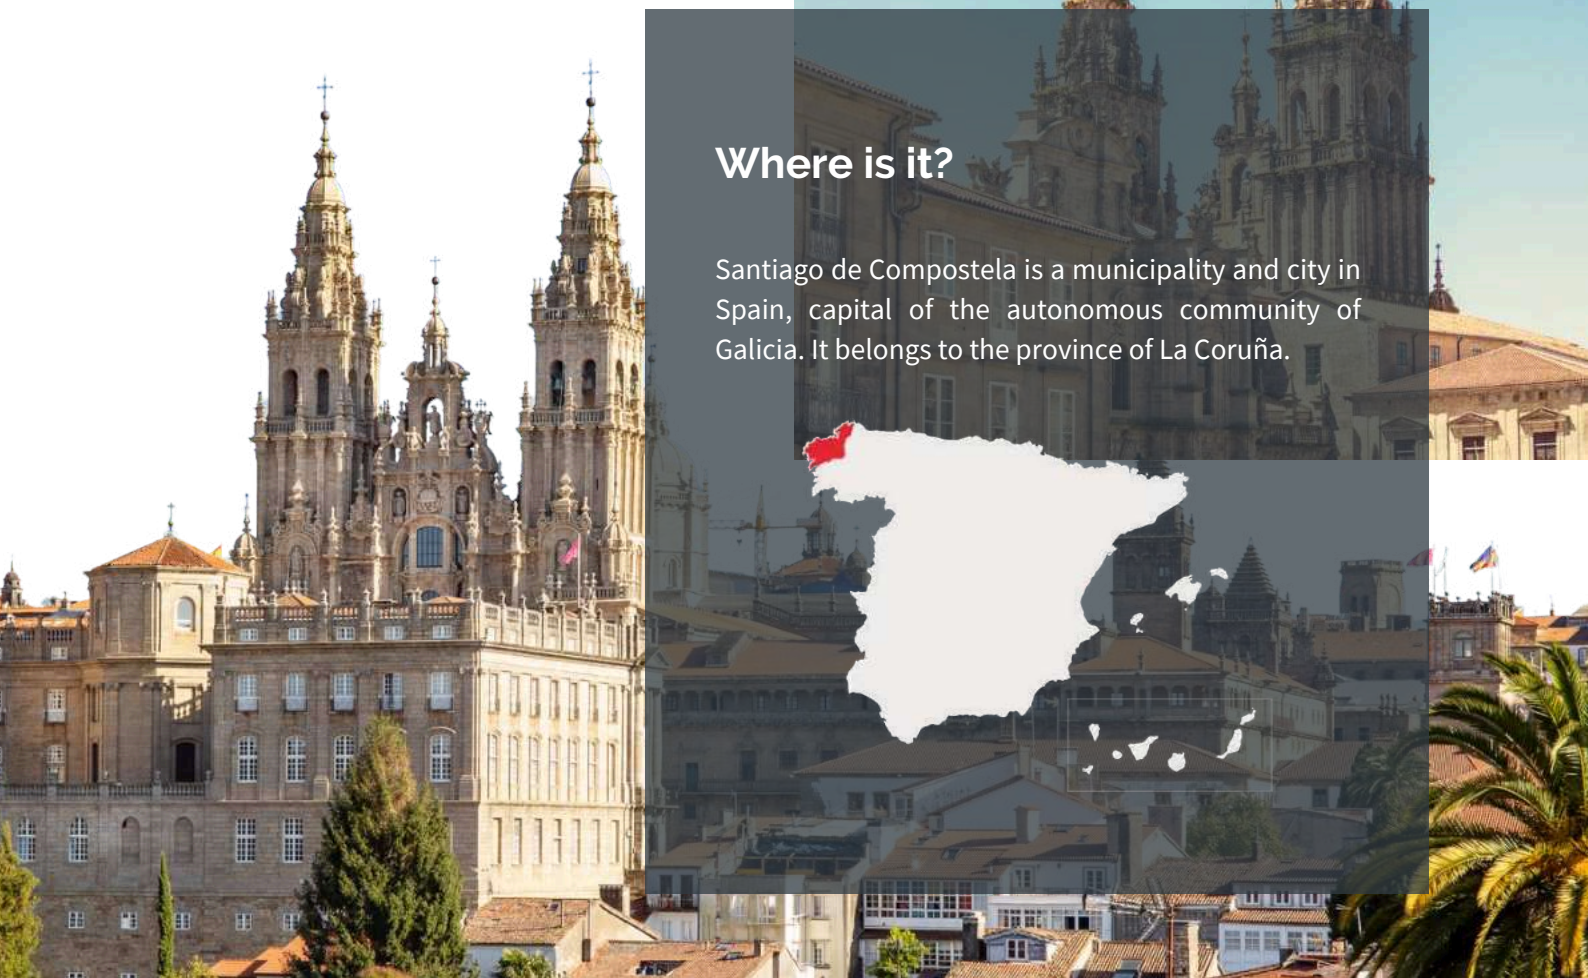

A lot to Discover

Santiago de Compostela is a lively city with many other reasons to dazzle the traveller, pilgrim or not: countless restaurants and bars in which to savour the exquisite seafood of Galicia, a historic centre declared World Heritage by UNESCO, contemporary art proposals... There are many plans to do in this city that combines its history with a younger and more modern face. Many say that walking the Camino and finally arriving in Santiago is a life-changing adventure. Of course, there is something captivating about this city.

Where is it?

Santiago de Compostela is a municipality and city in Spain, capital of the autonomous community of Galicia. It belongs to the province of La Coruña.

Academia Iria Flavia was founded in 1994 in Santiago de Compostela (UNESCO World Heritage City). It is located 2 minutes from the historic centre and very close to the main monuments. It is a small, family-run school, and we strive to offer personalised attention to all our students. One of our hallmarks is the wide variety of specialised programmes we offer, especially for groups of school or university students and for teachers of Spanish as a foreign language. In Santiago de Compostela you will find a quiet, safe and very welcoming city. Fun and dynamic, with a very manageable size (90.000 inhabitants) and without crowds of students. Our centre will organise your entire stay and accommodation, and will ultimately aim to help you learn and develop your Spanish language skills by living and speaking from day one.

The natural environment is one of Tenerife's great attractions. Its volcanic origin gives rise to unique scenery that you can discover with visits of rural charm in the north of the island, with a route around its volcanoes or with a tour of the Teide National Park (declared a World Heritage Site). The Orotava Valley, the rural areas of El Palmar and Teno Alto are areas where you can enjoy the peace and quiet of nature.

Toledo (Castile - La Mancha)

World Heritage City

Toledo is a monument in itself, possessing one of the greatest concentrations of art in Europe. It is also a living market of crafts and gastronomy, full of artistic activities. The variety of names by which it has been recognised over time shows its historical importance. Toledo is, in short, an explosion of culture.

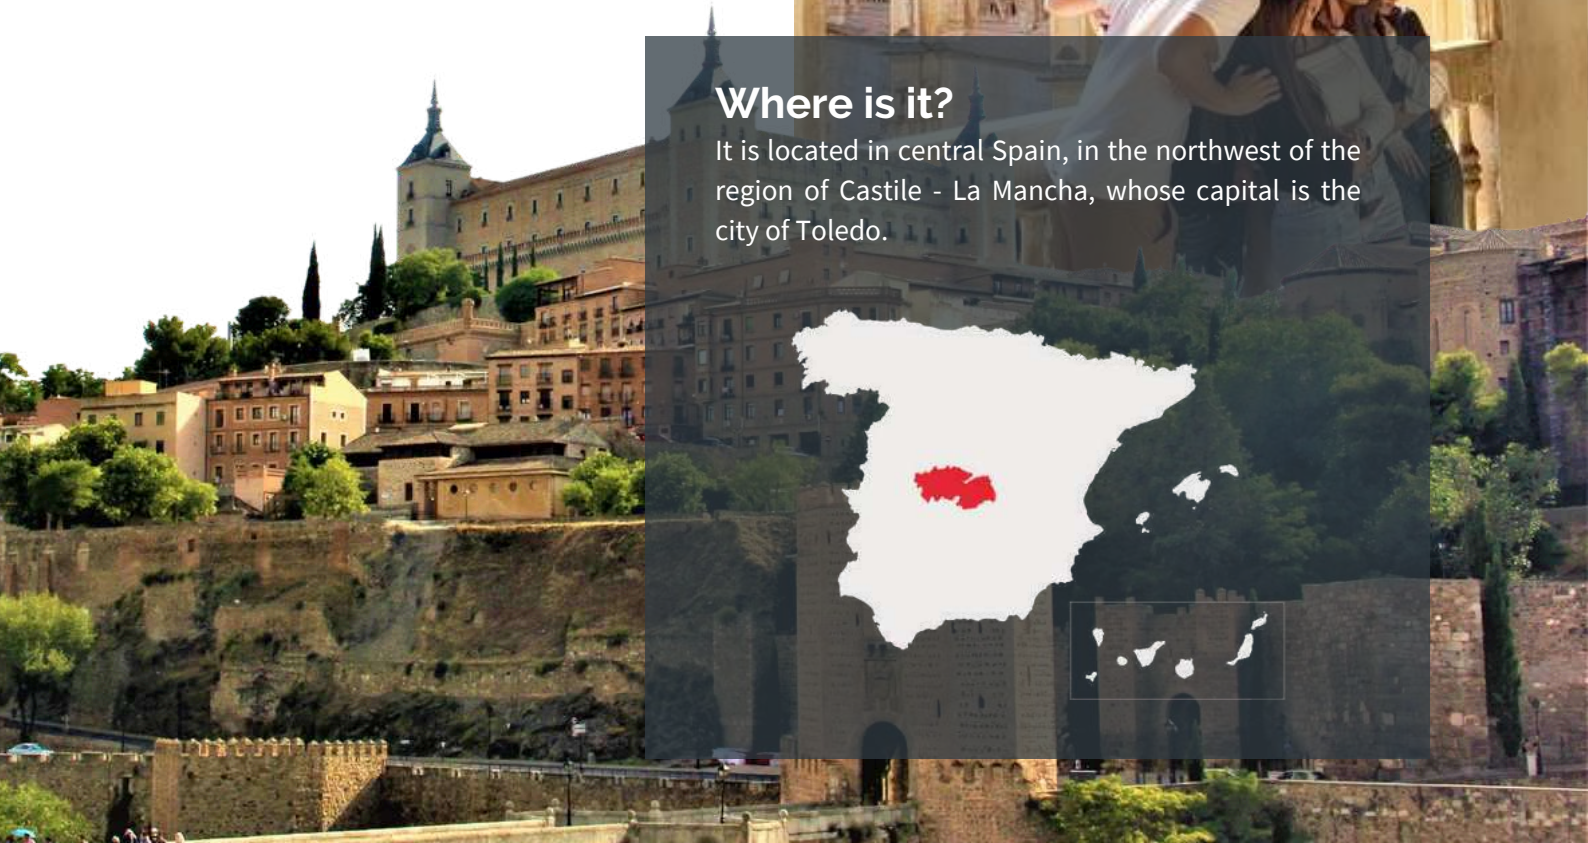

Place of Inspiration

Throughout many years of history, the city has been a clear artistic and intellectual reference point. Painters, writers, musicians, philosophers and filmmakers have for centuries found in this city their space for recreation and reinvention. Throughout the ages, Toledo has inspired painters, sculptors, film directors, writers and philosophers. And it continues to be that labyrinth in which to lose oneself and reinvent oneself.

Ibiza (Balearic Islands)

Its Beaches

Its coves with turquoise waters transmit relaxation and discretion. You can discover some of the most peaceful ones with a pleasant sailing trip from the ports of Eivissa, Sant Antoni de Portmany and Santa Eulària des Riu.

Nature

Ibiza's surroundings are home to other landscapes of great interest. The Benimussa valley and the Pla de Corona plain stand out for their rural charm. In addition to their farmhouses and abundant olive groves and vineyards, they are especially attractive in winter due to the blossoming of thousands of almond trees that dress the landscape in white. We also recommend a visit to the Ses Salines Natural Park. The salt flats extend across the south of Ibiza and the north of Formentera, and the sea that bathes them is the habitat of a large part of the Posidonia oceanica meadows.

Where is it?

Ibiza is one of the Balearic Islands, an archipelago of Spain in the Mediterranean Sea.

The Instituto de Idiomas is the first language school in Ibiza. Accredited by the Cervantes Institute and with a privileged location in the centre of Ibiza town. Thanks to its extensive experience and range of programmes, it has become the leading reference in the field of training on the island of Ibiza.

Bilbao (Vizcaya)

A walk of contrast

Bilbao is inconceivable without its characteristic old town with more than 700 years of history. It is a pleasure to walk through the so-called "Seven Streets" and find emblematic buildings such as the Cathedral or its most elegant theatre inspired by the Paris Opera, the Arriaga, as well as a mixture of shops and cafés.

A lot to Discover

Proof that gastronomy is an art form in the Basque Country - it is one of the places in the world with the most Michelin Stars per person - is the city of Bilbao itself. The Plaza Nueva and its surroundings are full of busy bars serving their famous pintxos: small bites of food, each one tastier than the next. So between lively tascas, family-run restaurants and prestigious chefs, foodies will find their place in the world here. Especially if you add to this the option of visiting the Mercado de la Ribera, a beautiful building where they can cook your shopping for you or where you can try a selection of pintxos and Txakoli wine to the rhythm of live music.

The most outstanding feature of the city is its beauty that arises, on the one hand, from the harmony between nature and architectural space and on the other hand, from its long history that has left us an important cultural and monumental legacy.

World Heritage Site

On December 6, 1996, Cuenca was named a World Heritage Site by UNESCO, thanks to the excellent preservation of its original urban landscape, medieval fortress and its rich collection of civil and religious architecture from the twelfth to the eighteenth centuries. In addition, the city has an exceptional personality as it is perfectly integrated into the wonderful natural landscape that surrounds it.
